

HENRY C. FRICK IS DEAD AT 70

Multimillionaire Magnate
Dies at New York
Home.

WAS A STEEL FIGURE WANTS TRIBUNAL FOR SETTLEMENT

Started as Poor Boy and Died to Be One of Industry's Leaders.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Henry Frick, multimillionaire coal and coke magnate, died at 11:30 a.m. yesterday aged 70. Mr. Frick suffered from an attack of pneumonia following a fortnight ago when another and more severe illness developed. This necessitated a visit to the physicians.

Mrs. Frick and her daughter were at the bedside when Mr. Frick died at his 4½ acre Fifth Avenue home and both witnessed his death occurring this morning.

Mr. Frick was a self-made man, from a poor boy to be one of millionaires. He and Andrew Carnegie were two of the most outstanding figures in the development of the American steel industry. Mr. Frick was born at Pottstown, Pa., on December 19, 1849, and his business career began as a clerk for his grandfather, a leather merchant, and ended when his grandfather was meager, but he worked at night to educate himself. Accumulating a few hundred dollars young Frick emigrated to America. By her prowess and strength and the indomitable courage of her soldiers she demonstrated her power to vindicate her foreign nationality, her conception of justice, and her no lesser influence in the mediation between the warring parties. Her efforts were not to be wrecked and her own failure to settle matters of purely domestic concern he attributed to the world. There are those in other countries who have tried and failed, for there will always be majority. Russia, with its blood and terror, is a painful object lesson of the power of minorities. It makes little difference whether it is a class or a race or a nation or other class. An sort of privilege will always be granted to dominate this country. We are a partnership in nothing it is worth while. We are a democracy where the majority can do what they please, and the minority, the man who founded this government have been defeated and forgotten. In America there is but one way by which great reforms can be accomplished and that is through the orderly processes of representative government. Those who would propose any other method of reform are enemies of the people. All the progress made by us has been due to our courageous and gallant men in these distressing times. We can afford in the midst of this day of passion and unrest to be still, containing our souls. The road to progress is slow in America. The road to economic and social reform in America is the straight road of justice to all classes and conditions of men. Men have but to follow the road of justice and the fruits of their efforts and honest labor. Let those beware who would take this shorter road of disorder and revolution. The right road is the road of justice and orderly process.

This is the hour of test and trial for America. By her prowess and strength and the indomitable courage of her soldiers she demonstrated her power to vindicate her foreign nationality, her conception of justice, and her no lesser influence in the mediation between the warring parties.

in the matter of international disputes which have led to the war existences, which sought to set up as a remedy arbitration for war. Does this not point the way for the settlement of industrial disputes by the establishment of a tribunal? Such a tribunal will be able to settle industrial disputes which in the past have led to war and greater America, winning the war of peace and safety, these two great interests, out of which will come a happier day of peace and cooperation, a day that will make men more hopeful and enthusiastic than ever before. There is a desire for more comfort and happiness in living and a more miserable condition among all classes of men. Certainly human intelligence can dream some acceptance of tribunal and settle the differences between capital and labor.
